"It is my joy in life to find
At every turning of the road,
The strong arm of a comrade kind,
To help me onward with my load.

"And since I have no gold to give,
And love alone must make amends,
My only prayer is, while I live
God make me worthy of my friends.

Our genial friend, L. M. Wilkes, is a man of potent abilities. By times he is a watchmender, an optician and a cabbage plant grower. He is also given to keen observation and scrutiny of thing. Maybe looking for the kinks in jewelry, 17 of somebody's watches taught him that. Anyway anthus and so, said L. M. Wilkes tills the soil. Recently he gathered himself to his cabbage patch before breakfast and was admiring their generative pulchritude when he heard the soft tolling of bells. And his keen eye soon detected the source, it was not ladies and gentlemen, some early Orpheus pealing the Sun-Gods ascendency pay, nor was it some dulcet and sonorous Glow-worm Organist. The house will be decorated in blue delphium, roses and spring flowers, and the table over which will be furnished. The color scheme of blue and pink will be carried out in the ice course.

Father Darkleaf has long known Jesse, his esteemed friend J. K. Megginson, of Vera, was of deep and honored religious virtues. We have played crochet in his front yard and admiringly listened to him lead the singing in church. But our own views on the matter received more than verification yesterday. Kirk came in, all important-like, and unfolded for our edication a sermon delivered in Washington by the right reverent DeWitt Talmage, famous livine, on August 30, 1896. Yes sir, Kirk had the clippings all in a big envelope and when we pasted them together like a jig-saw puzzle, there she was! And now, just as soon as we can find room, we're going to print that sermon, for its a dandy. Thanks, Kirk.

County Jail Is Full Now

The county jail at Appomattox is "pushed down and running over," according to local officers and this week tramps and hobos, who usually manage to get a night's free lodging at the jail, had to be turned away. One hobo managed to spend the night at the Appomattox Hotel Tuesday night, after being turned away at the jail. At one time last week, there were no less than seventeen in the Appomattox Bastille. However, this number has been cut down some now.

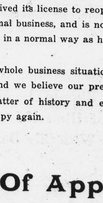
LOUISE HUNTER WINDSOR WAS GUEST ARTIST ON WLW ARMCO CONCERT



For the first time in several years the radio audience had the opportunity of hearing again the golden voice of the charming Louise Hunter Windsor, coloratuar soprano, when this former star of the Metropolitan Opera appeared as guest artist during the Armco Concert Band, broadcast under the direction of Frank Simon, over WLW Friday evening, April 7, 8:00 to 8:30 o'clock.

Five years ago Louise Hunter deserted a brilliant operatic career to become the wife of Henry Hayes Windsor, Jr., Chicago socialite and editor and publisher of POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE. Her decision to forsake the opera stage was prompted by the conviction that one could not successfully mingle the duties of wife and mother with those of a concert artist. Nevertheless, she has never neglected her lovely voice and daily finds time for at least an hour's practice.

"A Victory Vow For Virginians"

(As Published in the Southside Virginia News)

I believe in the United States of America and in our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I believe in my State, in my home community, and in myself.

I believe that my neighbor deserves my truest friendship and this I mean to give him, so I may deserve his truest friendship in return.

I believe that whatever hurts my neighbor, hurts me also, and I shall try never to do him any harm by act or word or thought.

I believe that whatever helps my neighbor, helps me also and I shall try to help him more.

I believe that by WORKING TOGETHER we shall be able to obtain our fair proportion of the benefits that are sure to come to all America as it advances into the era now beginning, and will COOPERATE in every possible way with those who are striving, individually or in groups, to serve the best interests of my community.

I believe that FOUR THINGS ARE NECESSARY to obtain, the greatest possible benefits of this New America, this New Virginia, emerging from the chaos of these recent years:

PATIENCE—Patience with every person, firm and institution, in order to permit such further readjustment as may be needed to meet the changed conditions;

FAITH—A sincere faith in the future of our community and in the ability of our people, by friendly cooperation and with the assistance which our government is providing, to work out our present problems;

VISION—Eyes front! (Not back.) No waste of time with vain regrets, but every minute of TODAY devoted to planning for a TOMORROW more beautiful and satisfying than the days that are gone; and—

ACTION—Do something! WORK! Work with brains as well as hands, and with each other, so that what is done, in city or in country, may count for most, not only now but in the years to come.

Surrender Here Sixty-Eight Years Ago

Thrilling Scenes of 1865 Are Recalled This Week

On Sunday morning, April 9, 1865, Robert E. Lee, peerless commander of the armies of the Southern Confederacy, and General U. S. Grant, commander of the Federal army, met in the house of Wilmer McLean, at Appomattox, and arranged the surrender which terminated the fitful four year war between the states.

It was one of the major events in both American and world history and destiny and appomattox is and chose Appomattox for its site. gain this year. T. A. Walton, well-known Appomattox citizen, who was eight year old in 1865, declares, never saw two days more alike as to the weather than this past Sunday and the day of the Surrender. The trees were a little greener then than now, due to a slightly earlier season, but the weather was just about identically the same."

THE McLEAN HOUSE

Sixty-eight years ago it was that the last volleys of the army of Northern Virginia were fired; sixty-eight years since the nation united at Appomattox to begin a new period in its national growth.

Mr. Walton describes scenes of the surrender to the Times-Virginian yesterday. "I recall that R. W. Parker, of Bedford, and Fitz Lee's command, and William Price, of Richmond, and color bearer for the First Battalion, both were killed in a flurry of fighting just about in our front yard," he said.

In the excitment of pressing problems of state consuming the attention of the nation and the world today, the sixty-eighth anniversary of the Surrender at Apomattox went without much attention last Sunday.

But here at Appomattox we can speak to the nation and the world again and tell the story of the new peace made here and plead for the unity and brotherhood that both Lee and Grant planned to bring about. And we can declare that this unity and brotherhood will pour balm upon the troubled waters of dispair now stalking the world.

Thursday, April 6, was court day at old Appomattox. Refugees from Richmond were fleeing westward and governor William Smith stopped to address a court day crowd from the old hotel porch here.

Friday, April 7, saw the line of refuges continued. On Saturday, April 8, several battalions of horsemen rumbled through the village as Lee's advance forces moved up and a little later flames spread their lurid pall across the skies to tell of the burning of box cars by Grant at what is now the town of Appomattox.

Scarcely before the villagers knew what was happening there was a booming of . . cannon and a rattle of musketry. Grant's army had gotten in between Lee and Lynchburg! Gone was all hope of joining with other Southern forces! Gone was all chance for a last stand . . . gone all glimmer of hope for a half-chid, ragged, hungry vanguard of the once all-powerful Army of Northern Virginia!

Across Cyrus' field attacked heridan's horse. About dark Lee came up and the last night of the Confederacy settled down amid gloom and impending destiny.

About eight o'clock, Saturday night, April 8, there was another clatter of sabers as the Fifteenth New York outfit pushed on from the depot village. Southern pickets quickly formed to meet them. Two men were killed. Lieut. Col. Goot was killed as he lead the attack past William Rosser's shop.

Sunday morning, April 9, Lee moved up from the Appomattox river and met Sheridan's advancing horsemen at Pulliam, J. K. Pulliam, H. M. Burge, Jimmie, Charlie and Joe Guill, Ollie Goodman, Watkins Goodman, Harry Goodman.

Flower bearers were: Mrs. Clara Mitchell, Mrs. Hester Witt, Mrs. Willie Maughn, Miss Hattie Guill, Gertrude Guill, Miss Carrie Guill, Earl Guill, Mrs. Anne Ferguson, Mrs. Etta Black, Miss Emily Smith, Miss Mamie Smith, Miss Eunice Smith, Miss Virginia Smith, Mrs. Martha Wood, Mrs. Rachel Robertson and Miss Vernell Guill.

Mrs. Smith was 46 years of age. She died in a hospital in Lynchburg, following her illness. She was extremely well and favorably known in this community and will be greatly missed by a host of friends. She is survived by her husband and the following children: Mrs. L. L. Stanley, Grover and Burnette Smith, Lula Jamerson, Beatrice Meadows, Helen Smith and Mary Smith.

Capture Still Capable Of 75 Gallons Of Booze Per Day

One of the largest still captured here in recent years was confiscated Saturday morning by officers H. W. McKinney, Duval Conner, Allen Farmer and Allen Tweedy.

Four men, Arthur Scruggs, Robert Davis, Edgar Wright and T. J. Harman were arrested in connection with the capture. They were tried here in the magistrate's court yesterday and sent on to the grand jury. Two of them pleaded guilty and the other two pleaded not guilty.

The still was capable of turning out seventy-five gallons of corn liquor a day, and about 4,000 gallons of mash and 16 gallons of liquor were confiscated with it.

It was located near Hixburg on the Appomattox river and almost on the county line between Appomattox and Buckingham. The men were charged with both possession and manufacture. Unlike most stills, this one had no coiled "worm," but rather a one and three-quarter inch copper pipe, which ran through an especially constructed pool for cooling. The mash was found in nine large vats.

Annual Easter Observance Will Feature April 16th.

Churches Prepare For Special Music and Sermons

The Easter parade, in all its traditional pomp and glory, will be held Sunday. From Grandma down to little Betty, the ladies will bedeck themselves in a flare of jade and a dash of pink, a dab of this and a dab of that, and strut forth to meet the approving eye of young and old.

Churches in this section are planning to greet capacity Easter congregations with special Easter programs. See page two today for local church programs. Easter sermons will feature the glory of the Rise of Christ from the grave.

Schools will take Monday as their Easter holiday. Tomorrow many of them will have Easter egg hunts, Easter contests and programs. All this week stores have been busy selling little candy eggs and larger chocolate ones.

Easter, like Christmas, or any other day for that matter, comes but once a year. Let us all observe it with joy and peace.

Supervisors Adopt County Levy Of $1.50

Same Levy as Last But Less Than 1931

The board of supervisors of Appomattox county, meeting in regular monthly session here yesterday morning, adopted a county tax levy of $1.50 for the ensuing financial year.

This is the same levy as was in force last year, but less than the levy for 1931. At that time two districts paid $1.95 and the other $1.80.

The county budget was adopted at the March meeting, and the levy yesterday was used as a basis for the new budget.

The supervisors also rescinded their action of the March meeting in regards to opening up a road from the Roseboro' section to Towerhill. They adopted a viewers' report on the changes in the road in the section of Wesley Chapel church.

A number of cases of dogs destroying turkies were reported to the supervisors and allowances made accordingly.

May Run For Governorship

State Senator Layman, of New Castle, gave indications this week that he might enter the Virginia Democratic primary in August as a dry candidate for governor. G. Walter Mapp, of Accomac, former dry candidate, stated that some out and out dry candidate would be in the field shortly, but virtually eliminated himself with the statement, "I have run enough for the governorship."

Three candidates already in the field, Joseph C. Dean, W. Worth Smith and George Peery, have all come out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, although Peery, of this group is not regarded as a wet.

At any rate, the prospect is for at least four candidates in the field by the time of election and a warm race is in the offing.
